ARMISTICE DAY IN HONGKONG.

IMPRESSIVE CENOTAPH CEREMONY.

THOUSANDS PAY HOMAGE TO THE GALLANT DEAD.

CATHEDRAL SERVICE.

In common with all parts of the Empire, Hongkong has observed Armistice Day in traditional manner. The main feature of the day has been the solemn ceremony at the Cenotaph, which was most impressive and was attended by a large gathering. A feature this year was the broadcasting of this service.

The observances began with a special service at St. John's Cathedral, which was attended by H.E. the Governor, who subsequently laid a wreath on the Cathedral War Memorial. An eloquent address was delivered at the service by the Rev. F. Freeman, of H.M.S. Hermes.

Perfect weather favoured the Cenotaph ceremony, which was participated in by naval, military and air force units, and at the conclusion H.E. the Governor laid a wreath on the monument, being followed later by representatives of various local organisations and residents, who also laid beautiful floral tributes to the memory of those who fell in the War.

During the morning, there was the customary sale of Flanders Poppies for the Haig Fund, whilst to-night Ex-Servicemen are holding a dinner at the Volunteer Headquarters.

A MESSAGE FOR THE FUTURE.

Hongkong's principal observance of the Day consisted in the ceremony at the Cenotaph which was similar to that of previous years. Once again, a huge crowd collected round Statue Square at an early hour and increased as the various troops and other bodies moved into position.

The red poppy was to be seen everywhere, and the sun shone brightly on smart uniforms, flags and polished band instruments. By 10.45, the various representative bodies were in position round the Cenotaph, these being the Royal Navy, the Royal Marines, the Royal Air Force, and Army detachments, including men from the Royal Artillery, Royal Engineers, Royal Corps of Signals, 2nd Battalion King's Own Scottish Borderers, 1st Battalion the Somerset Light Infantry, Royal Army Service Corps, Royal Army Medical Corps, Royal Army Ordnance Corps, Hongkong and Singapore Brigade Royal Artillery, 3/15 Punjab Regiment, and the Hongkong Mule Corps.

Other units represented were the Hongkong Volunteer Defence Corps, French and American naval men, the Consular service, China Coast Officers' Guild, the British Legion, Ex-Active Servicemen's Association, Royal Marines' Old Comrades Association, Gunners' Association, St. John Ambulance Brigade, the Boy Scouts, Girl Guides, Royal Antedulevian Order of Buffaloes, and Royal Engineers Old Comrades' Association.

Shortly before His Excellency Major General J. W. Sandilands, the General Officer Commanding the British Troops, China, arrived three pipers from the H.K.V.D.C. took up their position on the Cenotaph side nearest Queen's Building, the similar position on the other side being occupied by the buglers of the Somerset Light Infantry.

Medals Presented.

His Excellency the G.O.C., accompanied by his A.D.C. and other officers, then presented Sergeant Robson, of the Armoured Car Co., H.K.V.D.C., with the Long Service Medal, and Gunner Nadir Khan, of the Hongkong and Singapore Brigade R.A., with a medal.

His Excellency the Governor arrived promptly to time, accompanied by Captain F.G. Sillitoe, A.D.C. He was greeted by the General, Commodore R.A.S. Hill and the Senior Flying Officer, the troops being called to attention and the band played the National Anthem.

H.E. accompanied by his A.D.C. and the senior officers of the Services, then proceeded up the gateway and stood in front of the Cenotaph while those of the H.K.V.D.C. pipers played the lament "Flowers of the Forest." This was followed by the Last Post, sounded as one man by 36 buglers of the Somerset Light Infantry.

The Silence.

At eleven o'clock, a solitary gun boomed out from Murray Parade ground to denote the beginning of the Two Minutes' Silence. The silence was reverently maintained and it was noticeable that a Star Ferry launch in the middle of the harbour stopped immediately the gun was fired.

A second gun marked the end of the impressive silence and was followed by the Reveille, sounded by the Somerset Light Infantry Buglers. The assembly then sang "Oh God Our Help in Ages Past," to the accompaniment of the band.

Wreath-laying.

Wreaths were then laid by the first of His Excellency the Governor, who was followed by H.E. the General, the Commodore and the Senior Air Officer. The wreath of the latter Service was in the form of the Air Force badge and stood out prominently amid the great cluster of wreaths which soon hid the base of the Cenotaph as the representatives of other bodies and local residents laid their tributes at the foot of the memorial.

Wreath-laying continued for some time and at its conclusion the various units moved off independently, without band accompaniment.

A unique feature of the ceremony was that a description of it was broadcast by the Government Radio Station. For this purpose, two microphones, with the necessary amplifier, were installed at the verandah of the Supreme Court. One microphone was used by an announcer, who gave a broadcast description of the event, the other being used for the transmission of the band and bugle music.

The ceremony, while similar to that of other years, lost nothing in impressiveness and was a fitting observance by the Colony of the historic anniversary.

STRIKING SPEECH BY PREMIER.

LABOUR POLICY HOME AND ABROAD.

WORKING TOWARDS LASTING PEACE OF WORLD.

COMMUNITY IN EMPIRE

London, Nov. 10. Mr. Ramsay MacDonald, addressing a distinguished gathering at the Lord Mayor's Banquet in the Guildhall last night, made his most impressive speech since his return from the United States, surveying the whole ground of foreign and domestic affairs and revealing the shaping of the Labour Government's policy.

The burden of his speech was concerned with the establishment of lasting peace throughout the world and recalling that for some years the British Government had been engaged in overcoming the memories and the inheritances of war, he referred to the recent Hague Conference and the efforts of the Chancellor of the Exchequer and the Foreign Minister.

Hague Success.

"Our nation during and since the war has abundantly proved its distinct desire to help Europe on to its feet again and to share with almost unbounded generosity the burdens of Europe, and to fulfil honourably and fully every obligation of an ally."

"We ask for no special favour. We are not weary of being helpful to other nations, but, supported by the whole nation, the Chancellor of the Exchequer asked for continuity of treatment."

As for the political results, he referred to the withdrawal from the occupied Rhineland as one of the final chapters of the Great War and he expressed the belief that the present prospect was one of established peace.

He paid an eloquent tribute to the late Dr. Stresemann, "He was devoted to his country, first and foremost, and was also a great servant for European pacification," and he referred also to M. Briand as one whose name would ever be associated with the healing of Europe.

League's Authority.

As to the League of Nations, it grew in moral authority and its growth would soon be more dreaded than a nation's armies. His Government had made contribution to the League by the signature of the Optional Clause, and he was happy and proud that this signature was accompanied by that of every one of the British Dominions and India.

Those who were working for peace were some of the most impressive in the manner in which such questions as the freedom of the seas aroused at once old feelings and old points of view. The main thing to do was to get such problems visualised in their proper proportions, and although they might seem insoluble those admirable experts, such as responsible leaders of military and naval departments, could provide a solution.

Bugles of War.

But when it was remembered that the problem of the freedom of the seas could only arise after the bugles have been blown, surely every man of common sense could observe that the swiftest and surest method of solving these problems was to see that the bugles of war never blew again.

The Prime Minister took the opportunity to deny that this subject was to be raised at the coming five-power Naval conference.

Passing on to Russia, he said the British Government's view had been that Russia exists, and is active, and that the assumption that there was no Russia could lead them nowhere.

Russia.

"We want to get Russia to help in the effort to comprehend Europe as a unity of peace. We want to stop the propaganda which it is illegitimate that one country should countenance against another country. We want recognition."

CANTON'S LIST OF HOLIDAYS.

CHINA NEW YEAR & OTHERS NOT INCLUDED.

ONLY SIX PER YEAR.

Canton, Nov. 9. The Provincial Government has just issued a list of Government and Public Holidays to be observed throughout the Province next year and every future year. It is noteworthy that all the old-time holidays are completely excluded from this list, such as Chinese New Year, Dragon Boat Festival, Mid-Autumn Festival etc. The local authorities therefore appear to be doing their utmost to suppress all the old-style customs and holidays and to bring the Province as far as possible into line with the customs of Western nations.

INTERPORT SCORE BOARD.

Shanghai, Nov. 10.
183 Runs.

THE TIPPIN SCORE.

The wicket was on the fast side when Barnes and Macar went out this morning to resume Shanghai's first innings against Hongkong. Bright weather prevailed.

The feature of the early play was the excellent bowling of Bowker, who was delivering a fast ball breaking from the off stump. The Shanghai batsmen could not time him and Macar was sent back after batting twenty minutes for an addition of four runs, being caught by Pearce behind the wicket. Barnes, who at that stage was not out, was joined by Leach.

Hongkong's hope rose when two wickets fell in quick succession. Bowker bowling Barnes and later getting Leach caught, reached 13 when he attempted to cut Bowker, failing to get hold of him properly and being smartly caught by Owen Hughes in the slips. The score at 12.30 was 167 for 8.

Bowker completed his brilliant bowling this morning by taking the remaining three wickets, Shanghai being all out just before tea for 183.

Five wickets fell to-day for 52 runs.

Hongkong will start their second innings, 69 runs in arrears.

The score at 11.15 was:

HIGH RESENTMENT IN BELGRADE.

FRICITION WITH ITALY INTENSIFIED.

UNPLEASANT FACTS OF THE HOTEL AFFAIR.

SERBIAN PROVOKED.

Belgrade, Nov. 10. The embittered relations between Italy and Jugo-Slavia, developing largely from the execution of a Serbian by the Italian authorities at Pola last month, are not likely to be ameliorated by the attitude of the Italians regarding the disgraceful episode in Belgrade on Friday when the Italian Air Attache, Colonel Cassona, and a prominent Serbian sportsman came to blows.

The Italian Minister has insisted upon the punishment of the Serbian, though all the evidence tends to show that the Italian was the aggressor.

Following the insistence of Signor Galli, the Italian Minister on the punishment of M. Radolovich, the Serbian involved, a charge was preferred against him and his companion in the Police Court on Saturday, and a sentence of a month's imprisonment was passed on Radolovich, his companion getting off with imprisonment for five days.

Italian To Blame.

Police investigation of the affair, which occurred in one of the most fashionable hotels in Belgrade, showed clearly that Colonel Cassona provoked the trouble.

In spite of the strongest evidence to this effect, it is learned that the Italians are dissatisfied with the sentences passed, regarding them as lenient. It is understood that the Italian Minister has communicated with his Government regarding the matter and is awaiting instructions.

Graatious Insults.

From the evidence given during the trial of M. Radolovich, who is a popular hero among the Serbians, it appears that Colonel Cassona, without any obvious provocation, made loud and insulting remarks about Belgrade and Serbians generally.

M. Radolovich, it appears, eventually got up, went to the Air Attache's table and asked him if he had called Belgrade "a dirty, filthy town."

Colonel Cassona admitted he had, whereupon, Radolovich, who is a prominent merchant and sportsman, retorted "In that case, Rome is also a filthy place."

Italian Knocked Out.

Colonel Cassona then hit the Serbian in the face. Radolovich retaliated with a single blow which gave Colonel Cassona a black eye and incidentally knocked him down. The Colonel had to be carried out of the cabaret.

In view of the Italian attitude which seems defiant of the facts, it is feared that relations between the two countries will be more severely strained.

The inflammation of public sentiment in Serbia against Italy arose from the trial of Serbian students at Pola in connection with alleged shooting at veterans in the village of Plinio.

Recent Sentences.

One of the students was sentenced to death, the sentence being carried out on October 17th, and four others were sentenced to thirty years' imprisonment. None of them were more than seventeen or eighteen years of age.

The Italians alleged that the students were inspired by a Serbian secret society, the Orjuna.

Jugo-Slavian newspapers decried against the sentences, and it was learned that the Italian Legation had presented to the Foreign Minister, M. Marinovich, two Notes protesting against the trial.

Comments in the Jugo-Slavian Press on the sentences passed at Pola and secondly against alleged assaults on two Italian sailors.

PRINCE'S TRIBUTE TO V. C. HEROES.

QUALITIES NEEDED IN THE DAYS OF PEACE.

AN EXCLUSIVE ORDER.

London, Nov. 10. Although 321 winners of the Victoria Cross, who were the Prince of Wales' guests last night, were entertained in the Royal Gallery of the House of Lords as a place of traditional ceremony, there was an absence of all ceremonial about the proceedings.

Everyone wore lounge suits, and Generals and privates sat side by side, according to the chance of the ballot for seats, united as holders of the greatest of all decorations, which knows no distinctions of rank or class.

In proposing the toast of "The Guests," the Prince confessed to embarrassment, since it was not a national habit to invite men to dinner in order to tell them how brave they were; "and to save you discomfort," he added, "I will assume that whatever deed of arms stands to your credit it was committed by you from motives of self-preservation or because you happened to notice that someone on the Staff was watching and admiring you. I suggest this because every V.C. I have talked to always dishes up some explanation of this sort to account for his peculiar conduct, whether by land or sea, by air or underground."

The Prince described the Victoria Cross as the most exclusive of all Orders of Chivalry, recruited from a limited circle of men who see what is needed to be done and do it at once, at their own peril, and, having done it, shut up like an oyster.

He continued: "You are the recipients of an honour which it is true can only be won in war, and there is no wise man to-day, who, having learnt what war means, does not pray that it may never come again. But that fact only enhances the value of the Cross, for it is a symbol of the possession of those qualities which, though war called them forth, are really the foundations of peace—the qualities of a cool head and an undaunted heart, and fearless disregard of self. And if any man thinks that valour is only called for in fighting on the actual field of battle, he must have a very distorted view of life."

The Prince, in concluding, spoke of those who lost their lives in acts of valour who might otherwise have broken bread with them that night, and of the many good men whose nerves cracked under the terrible strain but who lived on, externally unscathed, but with mind and spirit crippled and bewildered. "They too might have been with us. Let us remember them all," added the Prince.—British Wireless.

CHIANG STAKING EVERYTHING.

CRITICAL SITUATION IN BATTLE ZONE.

WHOLE NANKING DIVISION ANNIHILATED.

EVERY MAN TO FRONT.

Shanghai, Nov. 11. It is learned that the Nanking Eighth Division which left Hankow for Honan on Saturday is under orders to proceed at once to Sincheng, where they will go straight into the Government front line reinforcing the Nanking troops engaged in the savage battle raging round Mhsien, which is still held by the Kuominchun.

Meanwhile, General Hsia Tao-yin's Thirteenth Division which has hitherto been at Sinyangchow, has also been ordered to the Lung-hai front, seriously weakening the Hupeh defences.

Marshal Chiang Kai-shek has now practically exhausted all his reserve divisions in gigantic efforts to overwhelm the "rebels" but he has merely suffered terrible losses, though inflicting almost equally heavy casualties. The situation is deemed to be critical.

The Wuhan cities are now practically denuded of troops. The Whampoa Cadets form the only complete unit in Hankow.—Reuter.

Whole Division Cut Up.

Shanghai, Nov. 10.

Chinese telegrams show that Nanking suffered heavy losses in the fruitless battle with the Kuominchun at Mhsien, their attack resulting in the annihilation of a whole Division, about five thousand strong, who went forward under the orders of General Ho Cheng-chun, and faced intensive machine gun fire bravely but disastrously.

General Kuo Chu-lang, commanding one of the crack divisions under Marshal Chiang Kai-shek, arrived at Mhsien yesterday evening to take the place of Ho Cheng-chun.

Decisive battles between the Kuominchun and Nanking troops, are now being fought and the outcome is still very doubtful. The Kuominchun have upset all calculations by the brilliance of their strategy and the determination of their defensive operations.

The First and Second Nanking Divisions, Marshal Chiang's "crack" forces are now in the front line defending Chongchow and the immediate future depends upon how they stand up to the Kuominchun assaults.

Straining For Decision.

Shanghai, Nov. 10. It was decided at a military conference in Hankow yesterday between the Generalsissimo, Marshal Chiang Kai-shek and General Hsiang Shih-kui and Chu Shai-lang, to move every available unit in Hupeh to the Honan front to reinforce the Nanking troops now assaulting Tengfong and Mhsien.

Independent sources state that 30,000 Nanking troops have perished in battle during the past two weeks, and it is also believed that the Kuominchun casualties are higher.

Thousands of wounded troops have poured continuously into Yencheng, Hsuehchang and Chongchow. Some of the wounded have been transferred to Hankow by the train load have arrived in Hsuehchowfu, in the past three days but their numbers are not known. The majority of these troops belong to Divisions under the command of Generals Wei Kih-shan, Peng Ting-ying and Liu Chen-ying.

Yesterday afternoon, telegraphic communication on the Peking-Hankow Railway in sections from Chongchow to Hankow were interrupted, indicating severe fighting and Kuominchun progress.

REMEMBRANCE DAY APPEAL.

CONCERT BROADCAST FROM GOVERNMENT STATION.

THE LEGION FUND.

The Government Broadcasting Station transmitted one of their most successful and enjoyable programmes since their inception from Z.B.W. on Saturday evening, when it took the form of a special Poppy Day concert.

The relay at the Broadcasting Studio, came through with exceptional clarity, both the vocal and instrumental music, and the speech of the Hon. Mr. W. E. L. Shenton, being completely free of any sort of interruption.

The programme, too, was well arranged, musical tastes of all descriptions being catered for, and those responsible have every cause to be satisfied with the success of the entertainment provided.

The string Band of H.M.S. Berwick, conducted by Mr. G. J. Maulkin, came through extremely well with their selections of "Tipperaryland" (Stoddon), "H.M.S. Pinafore" (Sullivan) and "Merrie England" (German), the balance and general tone of the instrumentalists being particularly good.

Mrs. Richard Sanger sang that old favourite "Danny Boy," with pleasing expression and effect and later a beautiful interpretation of "Roses of Picardy," whilst Mr. A. E. Stone's singing of "Shipmates O' Mine" and "Requiem" (Homer), was one of the big successes of the evening.

Equally enjoyable was the contralto voice of Mrs. Vivian Helmore, whose sympathetic rendering of W. H. Squires beautiful score "My Prayer" and "There's a Land" (Allison) made perfect reception.

An especially good relay was obtained of Mr. Dick Barly and his piano, the most attractive of his numbers being "The Tune that caught on." Mr. Robert Sutherland contributed a humorous Scotch song, and here again, the reception was distinctly good, even in an ante-chamber, where the acoustic properties are as bad as they could possibly be.

Other artists contributing were Mrs. Scott Little, who gave interpretations of "Lament," Opus 148 (Villiers-Stanford) and "Scherzo Merziale" (Villiers-Stanford), Mr. George Grimble (accompanist), and Mr. John Braga (violin obligatos).

Poppy Day Appeal.

Midway through the programme, the Hon. Mr. W. E. L. Shenton broadcast a short speech on "Poppy Day." His voice obviously suited the microphone, for every word came over clearly, requiring no strain on the listener to hear what he was speaking about.

In his speech Mr. Shenton made an earnest appeal for unstinted support for to-day's great effort to help the Earl Haig's British Legion Fund. He said:

Ladies and Gentlemen.—I have been asked by our Broadcasting Committee, and invited by Earl Haig's British Legion Appeal Fund, to address you in reference to the Poppy Day appeal, which takes place on Monday next.

The concert we are broadcasting to-night has for its sole purpose the furtherance of that object and the unanimous desire of those who are assisting with the performance is that their efforts may contribute in some measure to making Poppy Day in this Colony an even greater financial success than in any previous year.

The 11th November in each year, being the anniversary of Armistice Day, has been selected as Poppy Day, and that day in each year has been set aside as a day of remembrance—a day for retrospection. It is a day which has a double significance. First, it is the day of the year when every member of the British Empire offers up, thanks for the cessation of hostilities in the Great War, and connects the safe deliverance of our Empire, and all it stands for, from the greatest catastrophe the world has ever known. Secondly, it is that day of the year when every member of the British Empire particularly calls to mind not only those, near and dear, who passed on in the great cause, but also all who fell in the great armageddon. It is the occasion to make a special effort to insure that those who fought and are still with us to-day, and the dependants of those who fell are not only not forgotten, but are assisted in every possible way.

Hence, Armistice Day has been chosen as Poppy Day or the Day of Remembrance, and the Poppy, the Poppy of Flanders, is known as the Flower of Remembrance.

A Benevolent Organisation.

Now what is Earl Haig's British Legion Appeal Fund on behalf of which I am making this appeal to-night? It is an organisation

£1,000,000 Required.

Last year the Poppy Day collection amounted to a sum of no less than £590,000, but a sum of £1,000,000 is wanted, to provide for the vast number of calls the Committee has to meet.

The funds collected are used in connexion with one or other of the benevolent activities of the British Legion, which include the alleviation of distress amongst ex-service men of all ranks, their dependants, and the widows and children of those who fell, also such essential service as finding employment for them and the giving of assistance and advice on pension questions. The granting of loans free of interest, thus enabling them to set up in business on their own account. It also provides means to enable ex-service men and their families to

The funds collected are distributed among the following organisations:

- The British Legion General Funds, whose general objects are as I have already stated.
- The British Legion Officers' Benevolent Department, whose special object is the care of a large number of disabled officers who need periodical assistance, and helping ex-officers to obtain employment; it also assists in the education of their children.
- The British Legion Relief Department, whose scheme is the co-ordination of the relief work of the British Legion and United Services Fund. It also extends its help to deserving ex-service men irrespective of whether

CRICKETER AS GUEST.

MR. LAL SINGH ENTERTAINED YESTERDAY AFTERNOON.

Mr. Lal Singh, the young Indian all-rounder of the Malayan cricket team, was the guest of honour at a tea party given by the Sindhi Merchants' cricket team, at China Building yesterday afternoon. Messrs. A. S. A. Jansen and Evan Wong, also of the Malayan team, were among the guests.

In welcoming Mr. Lal Singh, Mr. Melwan expressed the great pleasure of his team in having their compatriot in their midst. He said that Mr. Lal Singh had already justified his inclusion in the team in Malaya's match against Shanghai last week, but he was sure he was only echoing the sentiments of those present when he hoped that Mr. Lal Singh would also win distinction in Malaya's match with Hongkong.

Mr. Lal Singh suitably replied, thanking Mr. Melwan for his kind wishes. He said that it was a great honour to him to attend the function, and he would long treasure the memory of that pleasant gathering.

SATURDAY'S FRIENDLY MATCHES.

The Kowloon second eleven entertained the Police Recreation Club, on Saturday, and won a match, full of good cricket by 30 runs.

A. R. F. Raven contributed 60 not out to the home team's aggregate of 151 for 6 wickets, at which score they applied the closure. He was well supported by several other batsmen.

Kowloon followed up their bright batting display by some keen bowling and fielding, with the result that the Police were dismissed for 81, Alexander being top scorer.

Captain Shipsey and Ross bowled with deadly effect, the former capturing half of the wickets for 17 runs, and his colleague obtaining 4 for 5 runs apiece.

Honourable Even at Sookunpon. The friendly encounter between the R.A.S.C. and Lane Crawford's XI at Sookunpon on Saturday ended in a draw, the visitors replying with 90 for 4 wickets to the R.A.S.C.'s score of 157 for 6 declared.

Gaining first occupation of the wicket, the Service men succeeded in scoring pretty freely, L/Cpl. Lyons reaching the half century before retiring, whilst five other batsmen passed the double figure mark.

Losing their first two wickets rather cheaply, the visitors were forced to concentrate on defence, and were thus able to play out time.

THEIR NAME LIVETH

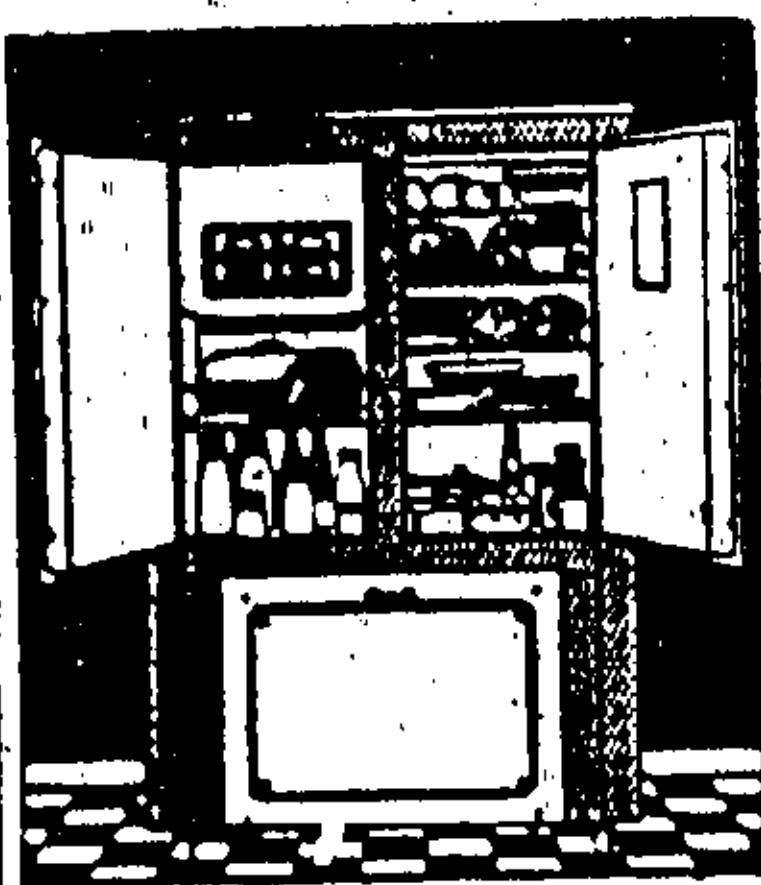

At once the noise and rush of traffic die.
The beat of hastening feet is still'd:
Bared are the heads as every man
His tribute pays to solemn Memory.

The sacred minutes silently pass by,
Each second pregnant with thought
Of gallant thousands who have pass'd
Yet ever live in deathless Memory.

How small, alas! the powers that in us lie
To comfort those who mourn their lov'd!
But solace take, O! aching hearts:
Their glory lives in fadeless Memory.

MONDAY, NOV. 11, 1929.

REMEMBRANCE DAY.

On this the eleventh anniversary of the cessation of the Great War, it is fitting that for a moment we should look back and observe how the character of Armistice Day has changed. For the first few years after 1918, the celebrations for the most part took the form of rejoicing in the Allied victory, but gradually the thoughts of the War itself and of the triumph of the nations whose armed forces won the conflict have given way to a better idea. November 11th is still Armistice Day, but in the designation, "Remembrance Day", we see the influence of time on the historic anniversary. It is now a day on which we remember those who laid down their lives and also those who came through the horrors of the great struggle maimed in body and mind and who to-day still need help and succour. Here is the value of Remembrance Day—it gives us all the opportunity of commemorating the sacrifice of those who lie in Flanders fields, of helping to provide employment for their comrades who still carry on, and of supplying emergency relief to the veterans who are not fully rehabilitated and to the widows and orphans of those who did their bit. That is the satisfaction which we have when we buy a Flanders poppy. The ladies who are conducting the street sale in Hongkong to-day are part of a great army of over two hundred thousand who give their services in various parts of the Empire so that some thirty thousand poppies may be sold to the best advantage. It is doubtful if any other movement has ever gripped the imagination and fired the enthusiasm to such a comparable degree. The reason is not hard to find. Instinct with the spirit of remembrance, "Poppy Day" creates a spontaneous desire to help, a determination to maintain a lasting relationship between the days of war and the days of peace.

From time to time, reports are issued showing how this wonderful movement helps those who have been unfitted as a result of the war from strenuous life in the workaday world. The British Poppy Factory at Richmond, for example, finds suitable and congenial employment for nearly three hundred ex-Servicemen throughout the year in the manufacture of the flowers of remembrance. Many of these maimed heroes were of splendid type, giants of the British Army. Let us look at one or two of these cases. One of the men, who dips and moulds two hundred big waxed poppies a day, was an old Army man of the Royal West Kents. From service in India, he went to Mesopotamia and there he contracted dysentery which left him totally incapacitated. Many of the men endured the torments of the Gallies at Ypres; one, a Highland Light Infantry man, now makes the centres of the poppies. Several one-armed men are employed, chiefly in veining the poppies; and there are some who have no legs. So we could go on telling of this fine movement which stands for hope to many thousand ex-Servicemen and their dependents and to widows and children of those who fell in those dark days of war. It is so simple and so easy for us to aid this cause by the purchase of a Flanders poppy. Yet a moment's thought will serve to show that an organisation of such magnitude cannot come into existence haphazard once a year. Behind the sale of the particular poppy which we buy there is the romance of high endeavour, of zeal for the success of a great cause, much hard work, fine good comradeship, and wholehearted collaboration. To-day we do well to think of those men who not only won the war, but, what is more, assured us of the peace and security which we now enjoy, whilst by buying the flowers of remembrance we know that we are not forgetting those who, left behind to bear the scars of warfare, also did their bit in those grim days when darkness seemed to settle on the face of the earth.

Cures For Unemployment.

The attempt of the two older parties in the House of Commons to minimise the importance of Mr. J. H. Thomas's unemployment proposals has failed to impress. The Conservative criticism was automatic, and Mr. Thomas has shown no disposition to commit himself to Mr. Lloyd George's programme. Two doubts remain in the minds of thinking people. In the first place, formulating a programme and putting it into operation are two entirely different things. Secondly, the £12,000,000 required to finance the schemes has to be found without the imposition of additional taxation which would hit existing industries still harder and cause fresh unemployment faster than new work could be arranged. We have more confidence regarding the second factor in the problem than the first, though in many important directions they are linked. The large policy growing out of Mr. Thomas's efforts to get the best for the least expenditure of money is against him if speed is the primary consideration, but is decidedly the right method of tackling the issues if permanence is desired. Mr. Thomas has no time for side-shows unless they contribute to the bigger things he has in mind, and the full effect of his programme will not be felt for at least twelve months. The financial side depends upon Mr. Snowden, and there is no reason to suppose that he will let his colleague down. He proposes to impose taxation on land values, and less exception than otherwise would be the case will be taken to this proposal in view of the fact that the taxation will apply entirely to land values enhanced by improvements made at the public cost. Taxation will be on the gratuitous profit not on the original value. Then again, it is certain that Mr. Snowden will find a way to save at least £30,000,000 on the cost of the nation's armaments, a very necessary reduction which can be made without loss of efficiency. Still more important, a big effort will be made to devote a large part of the fifty odd millions devoted yearly by the Tories to the dole system of maintaining unemployment to productive effort designed at its elimination. If Mr. Snowden can be induced by his colleagues in the Cabinet to delay the presentation of free trade doc-

THE MORE YOU SAY, THE LESS PEOPLE REMEMBER.—Fendall.

Mr. and Mrs. Taggart returned to the Colony on the President Taft.

The Empress of France arrived from Manila yesterday morning. Passengers on board for Hongkong included Mr. and Mrs. G. F. Davis, Mr. R. D. Elliott, Mr. and Mrs. D. A. Goodwin, Mr. V. Assmann, Mrs. Hastings, Rev. D. Elia, Rev. E. Chamoun and Capt. J. W. Highton.

At Tuesday's meeting of the Sanitary Board consideration will be given to a letter from Government relative to the proposed appointment of the Honourable Director of Medical and Sanitary Services to be a member of the Board in place of the Medical Officer of Health.

A fine of $750, or five months' imprisonment, was inflicted by Mr. E. W. Hamilton, at the Central Magistracy to-day, on a Chinese who was charged with possession of 26 tins of raw opium. The man pleaded guilty and said he was carrying it for someone else. The package was found attached to the side of his trousers.

The Christmas parcel mail for home was despatched on the Macedonia on Saturday. The Post Office staff was kept busy in dealing with the rush. No less than 4,000 parcels were dealt with. Of these 3,319 were sent to London for distribution in the British Isles. Miscellaneous and the Continent accounted for 681 and there were 266 insured parcels.

RUTH VAN VALEY COMPANY.

FINAL PERFORMANCES AT STAR THEATRE.

There was a well-filled house at the Star Theatre on Saturday evening when Miss Ruth Van Valley and her talented company rendered a pleasing programme. Once again Mantell's Mantles created a big impression and caused a great deal of laughter. Charming melody was heard when Miss Katharine Scott (the latter also rendering accompaniment on the piano) sang several songs, while Rex Storey and Miss Rose Lee were much applauded in their "Comic Capers in Hollywood." Miss Ruth Van Valley was again seen in several of her original dance creations, while Jack Medford obliged with a slow motion dance. Miss Rose Lee was heard in song, and the "Jazz Trio" comprising Miss Katharine Scott (piano), Miss Jeannine Elliott (violin) and Jack Medford (drums) also contributed.

The Company gave a matinee for children yesterday afternoon and their final performance in the evening.

TO-DAY'S "TALKIE."

"ALIB" SHOWING, AT THE QUEEN'S.

Pat O'Malley, the dashing young detective in Roland West's underworld sensation, "Alibi," the United Artists attraction showing at the Queen's Theatre to-day, is as Irish as the role of "Tommy Glennon" one of the chief figures in the story of crooks, cops and love that he portrays. Born in Dublin, in 1892, O'Malley went to America shortly thereafter and was educated in Forest City, Pennsylvania. In early boyhood he began an experience that led him through all the diverse divisions of the show business. Starting at the age of eight with a stock company playing up and down the Lackawanna Valley, he played juvenile roles during the show, walked wire ropes between acts, and passed out hand bills in the morning. He jumped from circus and carnival to stock company and burlesque, vaudeville and legitimate productions.

O'Malley first played in pictures for the old Kalem Company. Following this engagement he played in Ireland, England, France and other countries. Upon his return to the States when the war put an end to film production in Ireland, O'Malley joined the Edison Company as a featured leading man for three years. Later as a free lance artist he was co-starred or featured with such stars as Pauline Frederick, Priscilla Dean, Viola Dana, Helene Chadwick, Agnes Ayres, May McAvoy, Virginia Valli, Coleen Moore, Laura La Plante, Claire Windsor, Dorothy Mackall, Mary Philbin, Mary Astor, Barbara La Marr, Eleanor Boardman and Renee Adoree.

O'Malley is married to Lillian Wilkes, former vaudeville actress. They have three little, red-haired daughters, Eileen, Sheila, and Mary Kathleen. All three are being trained for screen work, and have appeared before the camera already.

WATCHMAN SHOT.

INDIAN SENT TO HOSPITAL FROM KOWLOON DOCK.

A shooting affair was reported to the police last evening, to the effect that an Indian watchman named Jager Singh, aged 55, who is a duty man at Kowloon Dock, has been removed to the Government Civil Hospital from the Kowloon Hospital, suffering from a bullet wound in the stomach, said to have been inflicted accidentally by one of the staff of the Kowloon Dock at 6.30 p.m. yesterday.

Although enquiries were made last night at police headquarters, no further details of the affair were to hand, and there were no particulars as to how the shooting occurred.

The injured man's condition was stated last night to be fairly satisfactory.

The Very Idea!

Passengers on Saltash railway station platforms are often thrilled by the antics of "Bill," a stray black cat, who has been adopted by the staff. Until recently, "Bill's" favourite trick was to dash over the permanent way just as the Cornish Riviera express was running through the station on its way Londonwards. There was almost a tragic termination to the spectacle, however, one morning recently, when "Bill" was fortunate to escape with even one of his nine lives. As it was about half-an-inch of his tail was trimmed off neatly by the front bogie-wheel of the engine.

"Bill" now confines his adventures to an occasional excursion trip into Plymouth—without a ticket.

A sign of the times was the inclusion of a glass of water among the thanksgiving gifts at Wesleybridge Wesleyan Harvest Festival. The gift was so unusual that the Minister commented on it.

Man summoned at Tottenham for deserting his wife, whom he married 30 years ago. Better late than never.

The more beer I drink, the better I can play cards. After six pints I am a champion.—A defendant at Thames Police Court.

Wood Green magistrate to woman witness: You are a loud speaker—I wish you would stop broadcasting.

Defendant at Wood Green: I have no witnesses—I'll bear my own burdens.

The keeper of a menagerie was taking the elephants to drink. He noticed that one coughed. He gave it a bucket of water into which he poured a bottle of whisky. Next day all the elephants coughed.

An unusual sentence was passed at Leicester on Joseph Taylor, aged 35, a shoemaker, of Carley-street, who was charged with attempted suicide.

He was bound over and ordered by the Magistrate to take a fortnight's holiday, the cost of which would be defrayed out of the Poor Box.

It was stated that he had been working from four in the morning till eight at night, and had become depressed.

WHO WAS...

SQUIRE WESTERN?

Squire Western was a typical specimen of the eighteenth-century fox-hunting squire.

A University education had not cured him of the rusticity of speech or of behaviour, and he remained to the end of his days ignorant and prejudiced. His native good temper was not proof against the irascibility which overcame him when he had drunk too deeply, and as this was wont to happen every afternoon, the life of his young daughter Sophia was no bed of roses.

It says much for Sophia Western's inherent sweetness of disposition that she continued to love and respect her father in spite of his frequent foulness of language and manners. No doubt she realised that underneath his roughness and brusqueness, her father loved her, to the point of idolatry. And that his tyrannical attitude was the outcome of a jealous possessiveness.

For all his countrified ways, Squire Western was not stupid. Indeed he manifested considerable shrewdness upon occasions, and was an ill man to have for an enemy.

Folding drew the average country gentleman of his day very truly in Squire Western, of "Tom Jones."

BORDERERS CHANGES LEAD TO GOOD WIN.

ATHLETIC DO WELL.

(By "Wanderer.")

But for a remarkable recovery entitling them to full marks, Kowloon, the only unbeaten team in the Senior Division, would have surrendered their record to the Police on Saturday, the visitors leading by 2-0 until ten minutes from the end. The Police gave a much improved display to capture their first point of the season.

The other senior matches lacked sensational developments, the results panning out in accordance with expectations.

Kowloon also provided the most remarkable match in the junior division, but in a manner exactly opposite to that of their seniors. They led the crack Chinese Athletic "A" team by three clear goals at the interval, and then suffered defeat by four goals to three. South China "A," the only undefeated side in the junior division, scored ten goals against the Club Reserves without reply, and the K.O.S.B. defeated South China "B" by six goals to one.

The full results are appended:

K.O.S.B. REVIVAL.

A Much Improved Display Against S. China.

South China, still hopeful of playing a prominent part in the league championship, had another humiliating experience, being outplayed by the Borderers, who gave their best display of the present season to triumph by two clear goals. A somewhat overdue change was made in the K.O.S.B. team, Reeves returning to the left-back position, where he proceeded to illustrate that he has no superior in that position, while Cook was brought in from the reserves to lead the attack.

The effect of the change was apparent at the outset. The defence broke up the South China attack with comparative ease and the forwards settled down at once, Cook playing in the centre as if he had always been there. It is too much to suggest that the Borderers have now solved their centre-forward problem. Cook did any amount of good work in mid-field, even if he was inclined to feed the right to the exclusion of the left. In front of goal, however, he was too easily beaten for possession, not gathering the ball with the facility which is a notable feature of the play of the remaining forwards. He did well enough, however, to justify perseverance.

The best forward on view was Torrie, the Borderers' right-winger, who carefully nursed by Stock, led Leung Wing-chiu and Lau Mau a merry dance, at the same time taking the shortest route for goal and middling the ball with delightful accuracy. Twice in the first quarter of an hour, McGlinchey put in teasers from his pusses, while mid-way through the second half, the right-winger flashed the ball into the net following a mix-up in the South China goal.

The Borderers' first goal came from a penalty, Everest scoring.

South China suffered from the absence of Fung King-cheong, Yu Cheuk-wa being a poor substitute though he worked exceedingly hard. Ip Pak-wa returned to the left-wing, but he was not getting the ball in the manner to which he is accustomed and was not as prominent as usual. South China's forwards, as a line, did not impress. Chu Kwok-luen and Cheng Shui-hong were responsible for dangerous movements, but Skirra and Reeves limited their scope effectively and chances of finishing off their attacks seldom came. Admittedly, their half-backs were overworked, and unable to render adequate support, but when they foraged for themselves, as often as not they parted with the ball disadvantageously. South China, on the day's play, were not a good team, or it may be that they were only as good as the Borderers allowed them to be.

Certainly the K.O.S.B. gave a vastly improved performance. The cleverness of McGlinchey, in spite of the fact that he occasionally kept hold of the ball too long, delighted the European section of the crowd, and though shooting is not his strong point, he did so well that the remarkable rumour of a proposal to drop him should be effectively dispensed of.

SUEN'S THREE GOALS.

Chinese Athletic Continue in Fine Form.

Had the Athletic defeated the Royal Navy by five goals instead of three, the Navy could hardly have had a complaint. The Chinese were by far the better team almost man for man, while there was cohesion and understanding in their ranks and lacking among their opponents.

Jayvis, Spragg and Carey were constantly in the picture in the first half, and they deserve every credit for the fact that only one goal was scored prior to the interval. Jayvis made some superb saves, but he was beaten by a terrific drive by Suen Kam-shun which would have beaten any goalkeeper.

In the second half, Suen scored two further goals, while he, Tso Kwai-sing, and Li Hung-ching came close on other occasions.

The Navy's right wing, particularly Van Tromp, was frequently dangerous, but the inside forwards could do little against a dominating line of half-backs and the keen tackling and kicking of Lai Yuk-tat and Ng Kam-chuen. The superior speed on the ball of the Athletic was quite a big factor.

KOWLOON'S RECOVERY.

Police Lead by Two Goals Till Last 10 Minutes.

With most of the play and most of the chances, Kowloon should have beaten the Police comfortably. Yet they must regard themselves as very lucky to have preserved their unbeaten record. This is not the paradox it seems. It isn't every team which is capable of pulling itself together and wiping off arrears of two goals in the last ten minutes of the game, and though they played magnificently in the closing stages, Kowloon must concede that their luck underwent a decided change.

At any other period of the game, Gallagher's scoring shot would probably have been charged down, while when Miles scored the equaliser with a dandy swerving shot, the goalkeeper was unsighted by Wynne.

Yet Kowloon had enough chances in the first half to have established a winning lead, Gallagher missing two pinches, while McKelvie, in the first minute, put in a terrific shot from Simpson's pass, which struck the side of the post and went for a goal-kick.

The Police should not have scored their first goal. Kowloon were attacking, Estall held the ball from Hedley's shot and sent it 'own to the half-way line where Kowloon's backs were standing, supporting the attack. Valentine received, distinctly handled the ball, passed to the left wing, Johnson picking up Bentley's centre and scoring with the Kowloon half-backs still up the field.

It was a nice goal but the early handling of the ball by Valentine was so obvious that it is a mystery how the referee missed it or allowed it to pass. Kowloon persevered, but they were not playing anything approaching their real game, and the dangerous Police attack broke through again, Valentine placing into the net with a good shot.

It was soon after this, when they realised they were up against it, that Kowloon were seen at their best, for the only time during the game. Fifteen minutes from the end, a swift move enabled Miles to get in a shot. It defeated Estall, struck the inside of the post and came out.

Another move on the left initiated by McKelvie enabled Gallagher to score from Miles's centre, while the equaliser came from a pass from the right, Miles putting through in spite of Wynne's challenge.

The Police gave a vastly improved display, the heavier ground undoubtedly proving a big factor. Howarth and Wynne gave a sound exhibition of back play, and Hudson did an immense amount of really good work at centre-half. Jessop was weak at left-half. The forwards had no inclination to artistry, but they kept the ball on the move by quick passing, and their go-ahead tactics were always dangerous. Dr. Valentine proved a real thorn in the side of the Kowloon defence, which was sound on the whole, though the backs did not give such a convincing display as usual. Miskieks were too frequent, though both recovered well.

Kowloon's forwards were patchy, showing up exceedingly well now and again particularly in the closing stages. Pile worked hard, made ground when ever he secured and nearly always got his centre in. As a rule, however, they were too close to Estall to be really dangerous. The left-winger Miles also showed up prominently when he got the ball, but there were long periods when he was best idle.

McKelvie was the best of the inside men, Simpson starting off well, but falling away to nothing, while Gallagher was very in and out.

ST. JOSEPH'S DO WELL.

Somersets Win by Single Goal.

Rocha gave another brilliant display in the St. Joseph's goal or they would have gone down much more heavily to the Somersets, who failed to score until the second half, when Knapp made no mistake from a penalty award.

The Somersets should have made certain of the game long before. Dash and vigour in attack degenerated into wild shooting in the vicinity of goal. Palmer, Guest and Bowley-Bull shared the blame, though Rocha's share in their subjection must not be overlooked.

St. Joseph's were frequently dangerous, their wing men showing good form, but Kilbride found West too much for him, and Cobb could make little impression on Crawley.

CLUB DEFEATED.

Very Scrappy Game at Sookumpoo.

The Royal Artillery scored twice before the interval of their match with the Club, being held for the rest of the game. They were the better team, though both goals came as the result of bad errors in the Club defence. Massey was not a good substitute for Jimmy Stewart and he let Allan through to elude a clumsy tackle by Holmes and score with a good shot some five or six minutes from the start.

With the encouragement of an early goal, the Artillery redoubled their efforts and the Club defenders had an anxious time, albeit showing up to greater advantage. Gill put on a second goal from a range of twenty-five yards at least. Rodger must have been unsighted to fail to get to it, though the shot had plenty of beef behind it and kept low.

The Club attacked principally along the wings and both Alexander and Scott were worrying raiders, the former being particularly keen. Goldman struggled hard in the centre, but he had a difficult man to overcome in Joyce, while he got absolutely no support from Reid or Davies.

The half-backs were worriers, Watson holding his own with Cotton and Gill, though why he did not presume to the more important centre-half position is difficult to understand. Massey never gave up, but he was very shaky.

Of all four backs, none went into a tackle with such zeal as Bishop, but his clearances were not consistently good. Holmes was satisfied to do his best and no more could be expected.

CHAPTER XXXVIII.

There were stories after that, about Jack and Mrs. Bulwer-Eaton. They said that in the Bulwer-Eaton mansion there was a golden bathtub, with cupids painted on it. And they said that a French maid bathed the pomegranates each morning in the gold tub.

There were rumours that the two were married, although no record could be found of a marriage license. It was whispered, also, that the old woman had adopted Jack, and would make him her sole heir.

European correspondents met the Leviathan when she docked at Liverpool. Mrs. Bulwer-Eaton was accompanied by her personal maid, a secretary, and two stalwart guards. With plenty of team work, the quartette fended off reporters, and Mrs. Bulwer-Eaton made a successful getaway.

Jack was not with her, and there was a rumour that he had gone ashore disguised as a steward.

Still, the couple was news. Cameramen bribed the servants, and gained entrance to the various Bulwer-Eaton homes. They photographed the million-dollar bathtub. And the statues of Cupid and Psyche in the old lady's boudoir.

Feature writers did articles on the mosaic floor in the ball room, comparing it to the art of Nero's banquet hall. They described, in great detail, the rug woven in Tunis for Mrs. Bulwer-Eaton, depicting the characters of a famous comic strip. They counted the cut crystal chandeliers, and the gold handles on the bureau drawers. And, by the time they were through, half the world thought young Mister Wells had done pretty well by himself. And the other half thought he ought to be ashamed, and shouldn't be allowed to live.

Everybody read the news but Molly. She had given orders that every word about the infamous Bulwer-Eaton-Wells affair be destroyed, be the papers were brought to her.

Once Red Flynn had tried to talk about it.

"That's an awful riding they're giving young Wells," he observed, meaning to sound quite casual.

Molly said nothing.

"It's a flock of lies and horse feathers, if you ask me," he vouchsafed.

Molly shrugged her shoulders.

"I didn't ask you," she remarked pointedly.

"Well, I'm telling you then," he pursued unreluctant. "If the old dame doesn't take them for a few millions in libel suits, she's a dumb janne. As for Wells—my gosh, they've taken him for an awful ride. And I ask you—what have they got on him? Nothing. Nothing at all. A man's got right to go to Europe. He don't have to tell the cock-eyed world about it, does he?"

Molly faced him angrily.

"It's about time you observed," she told him cuttingly, "that I'm not interested in Mrs. Bulwer-Eaton and her boy friends, if any."

Red whistled.

"But you don't really think—"

he began.

"I don't think anything about it," she flashed. "And what's more, I don't want to. If I'd lived as long as you have, Red Flynn, and had as little tact—"

"Oh, all right," he soothed. "Don't get excited, Sweetness. By the way, speaking of boy friends, how's your little pal, Bob?"

"Butler wouldn't melt in his mouth," she admitted, "since he apologized for that dreadful night. He's nice as nice can be. He simply went down on his knees. He was thoroughly ashamed of himself. And he's tried so hard to be sweet since. It's rather pathetic."

Red looked annoyed.

"Once an egg, always an egg," he observed. "I'm glad, though, you never tried to go through on that custody business. No excuse for you pulling a low-down trick, because the other fellow's rotten."

"No," she admitted. "I thought that over afterward. I'll never try to take Rita away from him. I haven't the right. The thing that hurts, Red, is knowing that he has the right to take her from me. If Bob should marry again, he probably would want Rita."

"Probably," acknowledged Red. "The only way you can beat that," he added carelessly, "is marrying him yourself."

"I've thought of that," she said quietly.

"Molly! My God, are you crazy?" Red clutched her arm roughly.

"Don't!" she exclaimed. "You hurt. Can't you take a joke, Stupid?"

"You didn't sound like you were joking, Molly."

"Well, I was. Anyhow why all the excitement?"

"I'd marry you myself," he declared, "rather than let that sap have you."

"Indeed?" She swept him a mocking little courtesy. "That's awfully good of you, Mister Flynn."

The next afternoon Bob called with a French primer for Rita. Molly meant never to be at home when he came. She was jealous of Bob, and it hurt her to see the comradely spirit that was developing between him and his daughter. She felt, also, that she could never—after that dreadful night—care for Bob again. Rita's French, under his tuition, had progressed remarkably. And the daily lessons were sweet to the child, as her bedtime hour with Molly. Tormented by her envious demons, Molly kept away when the two were together, sparing herself the agony of watching them.

She despised herself for her jealousy, knowing it for a base and unworthy emotion. She read in a doctor's book that jealousy is a disease, with deadly ravages. She tried to cure herself of it, as she would of a physical sickness, prescribing various antidotes.

It was unhealthy for a woman to concentrate her emotions so entirely upon a child. In vain Molly sought absorption, first in work, then in trivialities. But the fear of losing Rita filled her life to the exclusion of all things else. Like a great, unwholesome bogey, it stalked her day and night.

Then came the afternoon when she went to the nursery, and found Bob there. Rita was in the park. Bob had come earlier than usual, and was waiting for her.

Molly stopped on the threshold.

"Oh," she said, "I didn't know you were here."

"You've been avoiding me, Molly," he accused.

"No, I haven't. What makes you think so? I've been awfully busy, that's all."

"Anything special?" he asked.

Molly hesitated. "I have it in my mind," she confessed, "to write a book. Something different. Quite unlike anything I've done before. I've been mulling it over for days."

"A romance, I suppose?"

"A blighted romance," she said. He looked up quickly.

"Your own story?" he asked.

But she shook her head, colouring so guiltily, he knew he had surmised correctly.

"For a girl who has everything in the world," he remarked, "you're a singularly unhappy person, Molly. You're young and charming. You've friends, and might have lovers. You've a child to cherish. A beautiful home, and plenty of money. What more could a woman ask?"

"What makes you think I'm unhappy?" she demanded.

"You've changed," he declared. "The old sparkle's gone. You're not gay, the way you used to be. You don't laugh so much. And you've the saddest smile in the world, Molly."

"Well," she said, "I'm not so young as I used to be. And I don't think I'm charming at all. I haven't any particular friends—just Red, and you—and Mr. Durbin. And I haven't any lover at all. Of course I adore Rita. But after all, she's not mine. As for my beautiful home—why, it's nothing in the world but a rented flat! I don't own a stick of furniture in it. To have a home, Bob—a really, truly home—you have to have love, I guess."

"Why don't you get married?" he interrupted.

"And who," she asked, "wants to marry me?"

It was a tactless question, born of a moment's bantering. As soon as the words were out of her mouth, Molly regretted them.

Bob was standing now by Rita's crib, looking out at Molly at all, but at the mad March hare.

"I do," he said, and raised his eyes to hers.

"Why, Bob?" she quavered.

"It isn't he admitted, 'an exclusive desire on my part. There are plenty of men who would like to marry you. You'd be a rarely lovely wife, my dear. You are the sort of woman a man dreams about when he thinks of the woman whom he would most desire. For dream-girls are made of your sweetness, and tipped with your flame—did you know that Molly? You're the kind of girl—"

"Bob!" she cried.

"Oh, I know, dear—I'm a good deal of an egg, and I've an awful nerve to ask you to marry me. I've given a couple of unpleasant exhibitions of just what kind of a clump I am. And it's darn preposterous to expect you to listen to me. But, after all, Molly, there are certain circumstances to be considered. I happen to be the father of a child whom you adore. If you should marry me, you would become Rita's mother. That ought to mean something to you."

She shook her head wildly.

"But, Bob, I have Rita now. You wouldn't ever take her from me?"

"Rita is mine," he said.

"Suppose, Molly, that you should marry someone else. Would you expect me to give up my child?"

"But I'm not going to marry anyone, Bob!"

"It isn't," he insisted, "a matter on which I can hazard any chances. Nearly everyone wants to marry, and almost everyone succeeds. If you marry, you would probably have children of your own."

"I'd love Rita most," she declared.

"But I couldn't let you have her," he protested. "You must believe I love my child, Molly."

"Why, of course you love her! Everybody loves her. My goodness, Bob, what are we talking about? Anybody'd think—"

She laughed nervously. "I'm sure I've no notion of getting married, or having a family, or anything of the sort."

"But you ought to. That's what the matter with you, Molly. Your life is incomplete. You need a husband. Children. Requited love."

"Bob!" she appealed. "You make me sound like an old maid with a complex. Stop it!"

He put his arm around her awkwardly.

"Now listen to me, little girl. We've been friends for a long time, haven't we? We know each other pretty well."

She nodded, squirming uncomfortably.

"Well, I'm a fairly broad-minded sort of chap. I've stood back and watched you and Red Flynn, and I've kept my mouth shut. I believe that a girl should have enough experience to get a sane slant on love, exactly as men do. It gives them a better chance of happy marriage based on reasonable values."

"Sometimes, Molly, it's made me pretty sore, seeing you run round with Flynn. That night I came in, and found you in his arms."

"Bob!" she cried.

"But that's all right," he went on. "If you hadn't played around a bit, the first man who broke through your guard to kiss you, would have given you such a devastating thrill, you'd have thought it was love-for-life stuff. Now you know better than that. You know, for instance, that Jack Wells and Flynn can both thrill you."

"See here!"

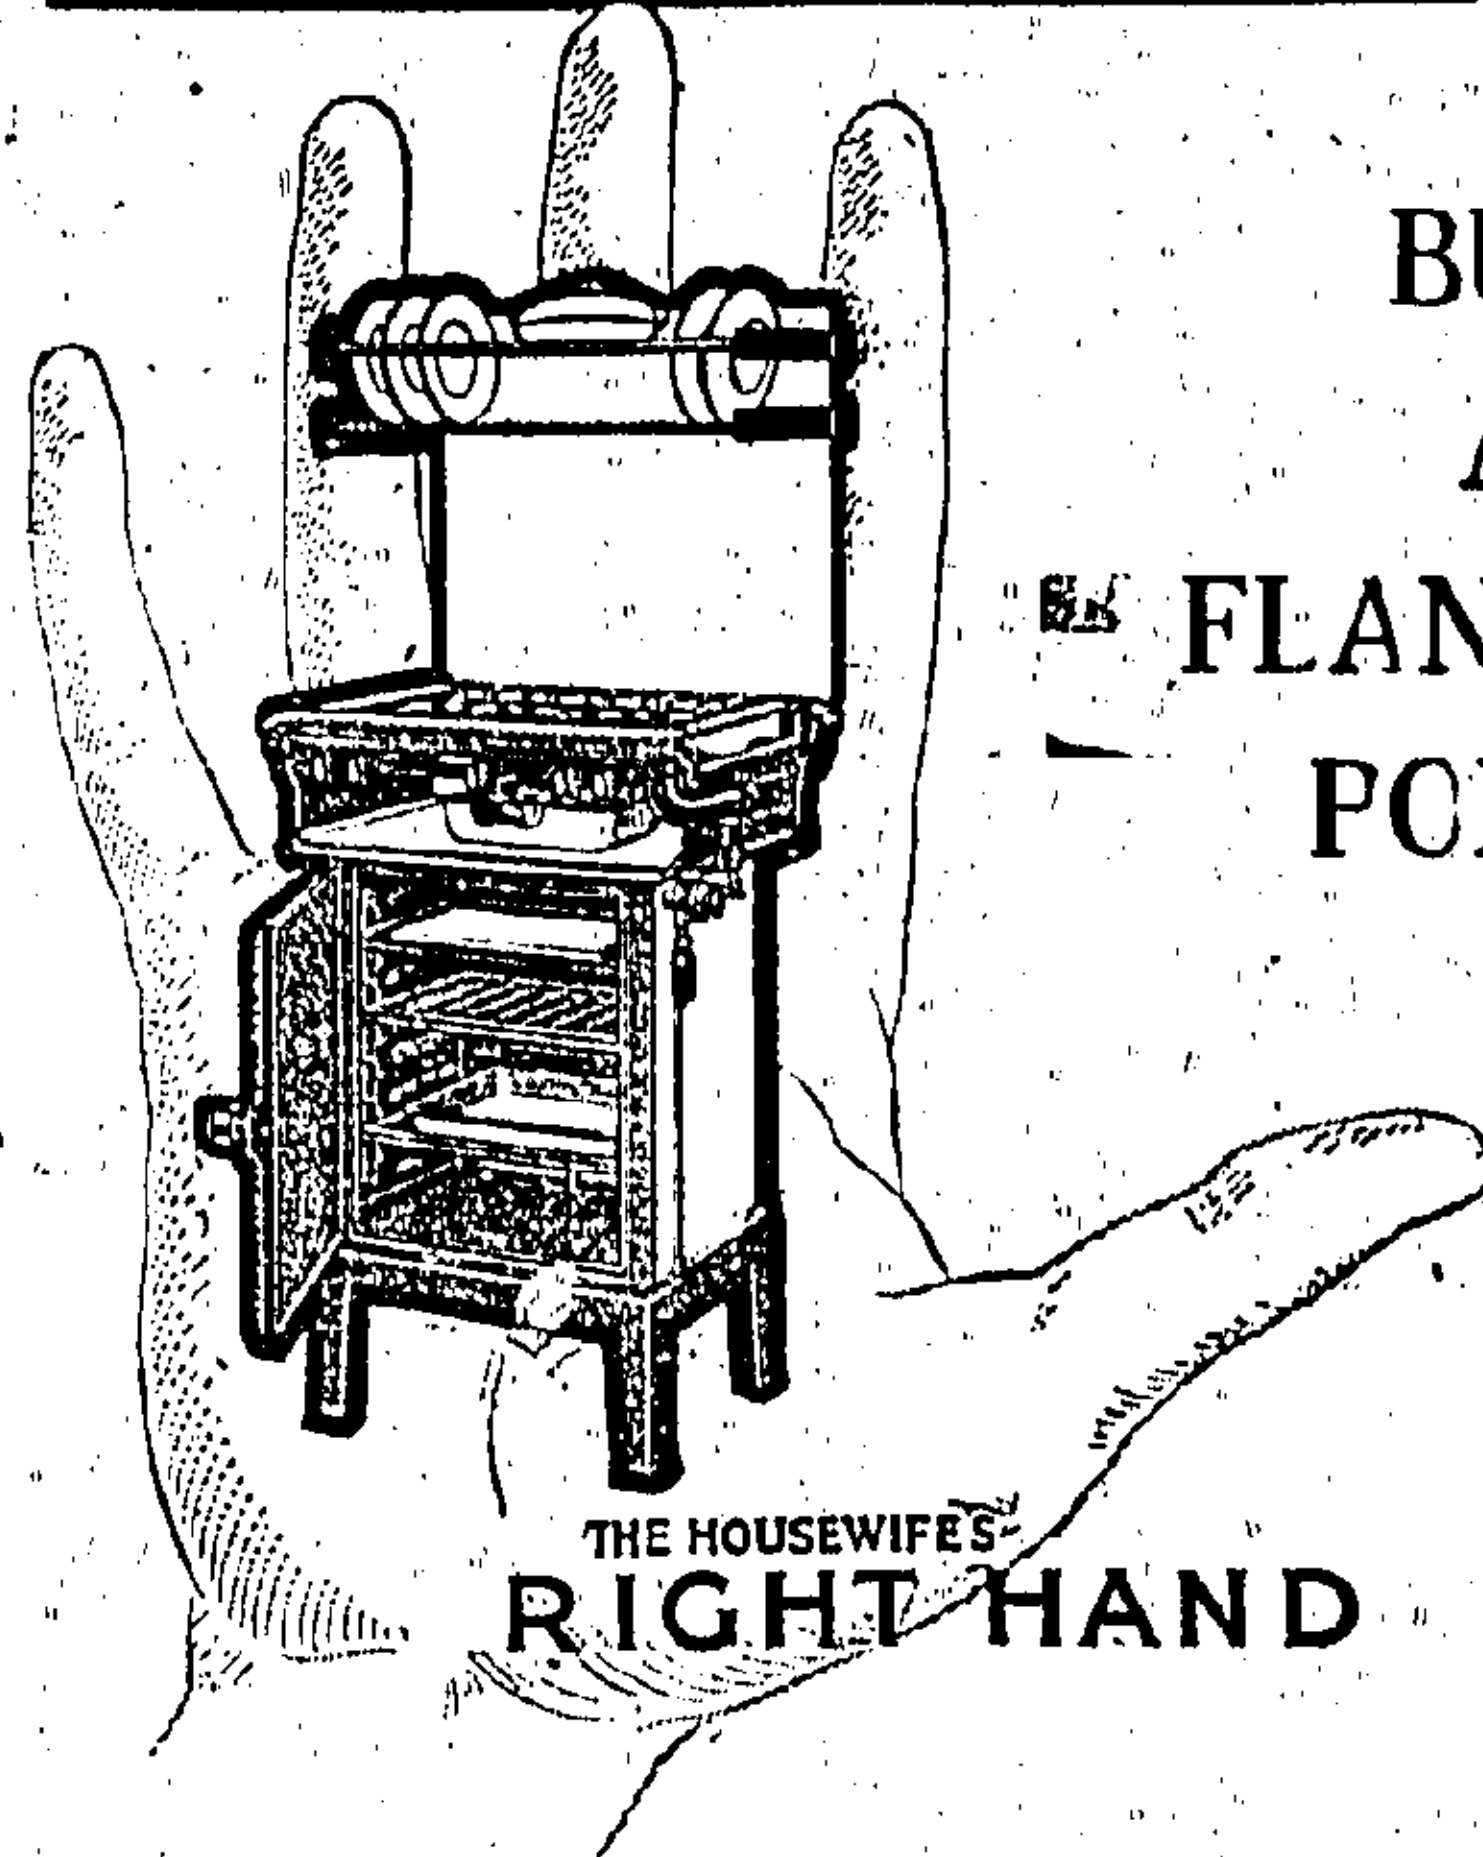

Molly thrust him from her, and catching his coat lapels in both hands, held him. Searching his eyes with hers.

"You mustn't talk to me like that."

"Why not?" he demanded. "We might as well be honest with each other. Now listen, Molly."

RECREIO SPORTS.

SEVERAL EXCELLENT PERFORMANCES.

Some excellent performances were seen at the second annual athletic meeting of the Club de Recreio, held yesterday at King's Park. The meeting was a personal triumph for the brothers A. and L. Gosano, for they won as many as five events between them, and throughout the afternoon ran with style and fine judgment.

B. Gosano succeeded in winning the 120 yards flat handicap, the 100 yards flat championship, which carries with it the challenge cup presented by Messrs. J. M. da Rocha and Co., and the 220 yards flat handicap.

A. Gosano, in addition to securing this race, ran first in the quarter mile championship, and thus carried off the challenge cup presented by the Portuguese Staff of the Hongkong and Shanghai Banking Corporation, whilst also ran second to his brother in the 100 yards championship.

The 440 yards championship was probably the best event of the afternoon, for it was accomplished in the excellent time of 55.1-5 secs., and the contestants went "all-out" to secure the title. A. Gosano won with very little to spare, but he achieved his success solely on merit. A. Gosano, by clearing 5 ft. 3 1/2 ins., beat his brother for first place in the high jump.

The 100 yards Ladies' Championship, reserved itself into a duel between Miss Cynthia Silva and Miss Gloria d'Almada, with the former the winner in the excellent time of 13.1-5 secs.

Miss d'Almada consoled herself, however, by taking the 120 yards girls' flat race.

The Veterans' Race was a great affair, which resulted in A. V. Barros, a young man from A. V. Barros, coming out as the winner.

The half mile championship also resolved itself into a thrilling contest, F. M. da Silva running a very fine race to capture the honours in the time of 2 min. 15.1-5 secs. A. E. Carvalho was placed a good second, and had he reserved his sprint a little longer, might easily have reversed the order of placing.

The open relay race was won by the K.O.S.B. team.

Thanks to the excellent organization and the energetic work of the officials, the programme was carried through without a hitch.

Those who were responsible for the admirable arrangements were Mr. Leo d'Almada e Castro, Jr. (President of the Club), Mr. M. A. Figueiredo (Hon. Treasurer), Mr. F. A. Xavier (Hon. Secretary), and the General Committee consisting of the Hon. Mr. J. P. Braga, Messrs. E. V. M. R. de Sousa, F. M. Carvalho, F. Frata, R. Roberts and R. A. Silva, and an energetic staff of judges and other willing helpers.

LOCAL WEDDINGS.

H. E. THE GOVERNOR PROPOSES TOAST.

Two Chinese families, well-known to foreign residents for their large business interests, were united in marriage on Saturday afternoon, when Miss Gertrude Suk Woon Chan, the oldest daughter of Mr. Chan Lim-pak, became the bride of Mr. Kwok Tsan the second son of Mr. Kwok Siu-lau.

The ceremony took place at "Marlingford," the home of the bridegroom at No. 97-99, Robinson Road, in the presence of members of both families. The bride was charmingly attired in white satin with silver embroidery, and carried a bouquet of white lilies-of-the-valley with maidenhair fern. She was attended by three bridesmaids—Misses Pearl Chow, Agnes Chan and Margaret Chan, who were all dressed in light pink net lined with satin and trimmed with silver. They carried bouquets of pink flowers. The flower girl was Miss Chan.

Mr. Kwok Yan, brother to the bridegroom, officiated as "best man."

Later in the afternoon, a largely attended reception was given in the palatial dining hall attached to the bridegroom's home. It is a building with pagoda-like roofs, and with the interior tastefully decorated and fitted out with considerable attention to detail, now formed a charmingly ideal setting for the function.

Typical of the Best.

An honoured guest was His Excellency the Governor, Sir Cecil, who arrived with Lady Clementi and his private secretary, Captain A. J. L. Whyte, R.E., and made the principal speech of the occasion. In proposing the toast of the newly-married couple, His Excellency said that the bridegroom was typical of all that was best in the Chinese youth of Hongkong to-day. After having completed his early education at the Diocesan Boys' School he took a commercial course at the Hongkong University and then went into business. Continuing, His Excellency drew the attention of the gathering specially to the fact that in the troublous days of 1925, the bridegroom joined up as a special constable, and from 1927 he had been a member of the Hongkong Police Reserve. (Applause.)

The bride, His Excellency said, was also typical of all that was charming and delightful in the Chinese womanhood of to-day, and in her case also, it could be claimed that she was a product of Hongkong, having received her education at St. Stephen's Girls' College.

Sir Cecil said that the consummation of this happy match between the two families came as the realisation of the hopes which were nearest to his own heart. Mr. Kwok Siu-lau was an old friend of his, and was a merchant of the highest repute in the Colony. Mr. Chan Lim-pak was for many years Chairman of the Canton Chamber of Commerce. Thus two families—one of them originating in Hongkong and the other in Canton—were united in marriage. In this consummation was seen another true indication of the long-standing friendship between Canton and this Colony. (Applause.)

The toast to the health of the bride and bridegroom was then heartily drunk by the gathering.

"A Pair of Sparkling Eyes."

Sir Shou-son Chow, who next spoke, referred in glowing terms to the beauty of the bride, of which the most striking feature was a "pair of eyes which sparkled like diamonds." He (the speaker) had largely taken up the role of match-maker in bringing about the happy event of that day, and in proceeding to give a humorous dissertation on the role and purpose of a match-maker in China, said that the custom was so common as to have become an established and lucrative profession.

The speaker, however, would have the gathering understand that he was not one of these unscrupulous money-making match-makers, and even if he were, they could not say, after seeing the couple, that the results were anything but fortunate. (Laughter and applause.)

After making a humorous allusion to the tall person of Mr. Kwok Siu-lau, Sir Shou-son went on to speak of the latter's business and philanthropic activities mentioning inter alia, the recent donation of $50,000 which Mr. Kwok made to the University. Mr. Kwok was also responsible in a large part for the foundation and upkeep of St. Stephen's College.

Speaking of the bride's father, Mr. Chan Lim-pak, Sir Shou-son said he also was well-known to them, being Chairman at one time of the Canton Chamber of Commerce and compadre of the Hongkong and Shanghai Bank at Shumson. Later, Mr. Chan had identified himself with the business of the Nanyang Brothers Tobacco Company in Hongkong.

The groom, in responding, thanked the gathering for their good wishes and the kindly interest they had taken in the wedding.

Mr. Kwok Siu-lau also spoke, in Chinese.

The Guests.

The guests then moved to the far end of the garden, in expectation of unfavourable weather. Music was discoursed by the Band of the 2nd Battalion The King's Own Scottish Borderers.

Amongst the large gathering of foreign and Chinese friends present at the reception, in addition to His Excellency Sir Cecil Clementi, K.C.M.G., Lady Clementi and Captain Whyte, R.E., were His Excellency Major-General J. W. Sandilands, C.B., C.M.G., D.S.O., General Officer Commanding; Commodore Hill, the Hon. Mr. W. T. Southern, C.M.G., Hon. Mr. E. R. Hallifax, Mrs. Hallifax and Miss Hallifax, Hon. Mr. H. T. Greasy and Mrs. Greasy, Hon. Dr. R. H. Kotewall, C.M.G., Hon. Sir Shou-son Chow, Hon. Dr. S. W. Tso, Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Goldsmith, Mr. E. W. Carpenter, Professor J. Forster, Professor R. K. M. Cathedral Service.

A pretty wedding was solemnised at St. John's Cathedral at 3 p.m. on Saturday when Miss Minnie Lee, fifth daughter of the late Mr. Lee Kan-tung, and of Mrs. Lee Kan-tung, became the bride of Mr. Wong Sik-chung, fourth son of Mr. Wong Kam-fuk, J.P. Mr. Wong

AN OPEN-AIR CONCERT.

INTERPORT FUNCTION ON THE H.K.C.C. GROUND.

There should be an exceptionally large attendance at the open-air concert to be given on the Hongkong Cricket Club ground to-morrow (Tuesday) at 9.30 p.m., for an excellent and varied programme of musical items has been arranged, in which some of the best local artists will appear.

The Band of the King's Own Scottish Borderers will be one of the chief attractions, with selections from their wide repertoire, and one particularly interesting item is a song by Mrs. Sanger, accompanied by the full band.

Mr. Li Chor Chi will sing to a violin obligato by Mr. John Braga, and other vocalists who have promised their support are Mr. A. Hyde Lay, Mrs. Youngusband and Mr. Oscar Eager.

Major Tuks and Lieut. Musson are sure to provide excellent entertainment with songs with piano and banjo, whilst one of the most interesting items is a song medley contributed by Messdames Bellamy, Davenport Browne, Hancock, Scott-Little, Tinson, Griggs, and Messrs. Annals, Brock, Griggs, Green, Macdonald, and Parker. A vocal duet is promised by Mr. D. W. Leach and Mr. E. G. Barnes, the Shanghai cricketers, and the official accompanists will be Mrs. Griggs, Mr. P. Madar and Mr. George Grimble.

Kam-fuk is a brother-in-law of Sir Robert Ho Tung, member of the District Watch Committee and other public bodies, patron of the Chinese Recreation Club and compadre of the Hongkong and Kowloon Godown Co.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. H. V. Koop in the presence of a large attendance of relatives and friends of the families.

The bride, who was given away by her brother, was attired in a long gown of ivory satin, charmeuse and ivory lace, trimmed with a trail of orange blossoms, and a short veil. She carried a bouquet of cosmos, anemone and maiden-hair fern.

She was attended by her sisters, the Misses Rose and May Lee, Miss Beatrice Choa and Miss Florence Lim, as bridesmaids, and the Misses Eileen Lee, and Madeline and Gladys Cheung as flower girls; whilst Master Lawrence Lee was page.

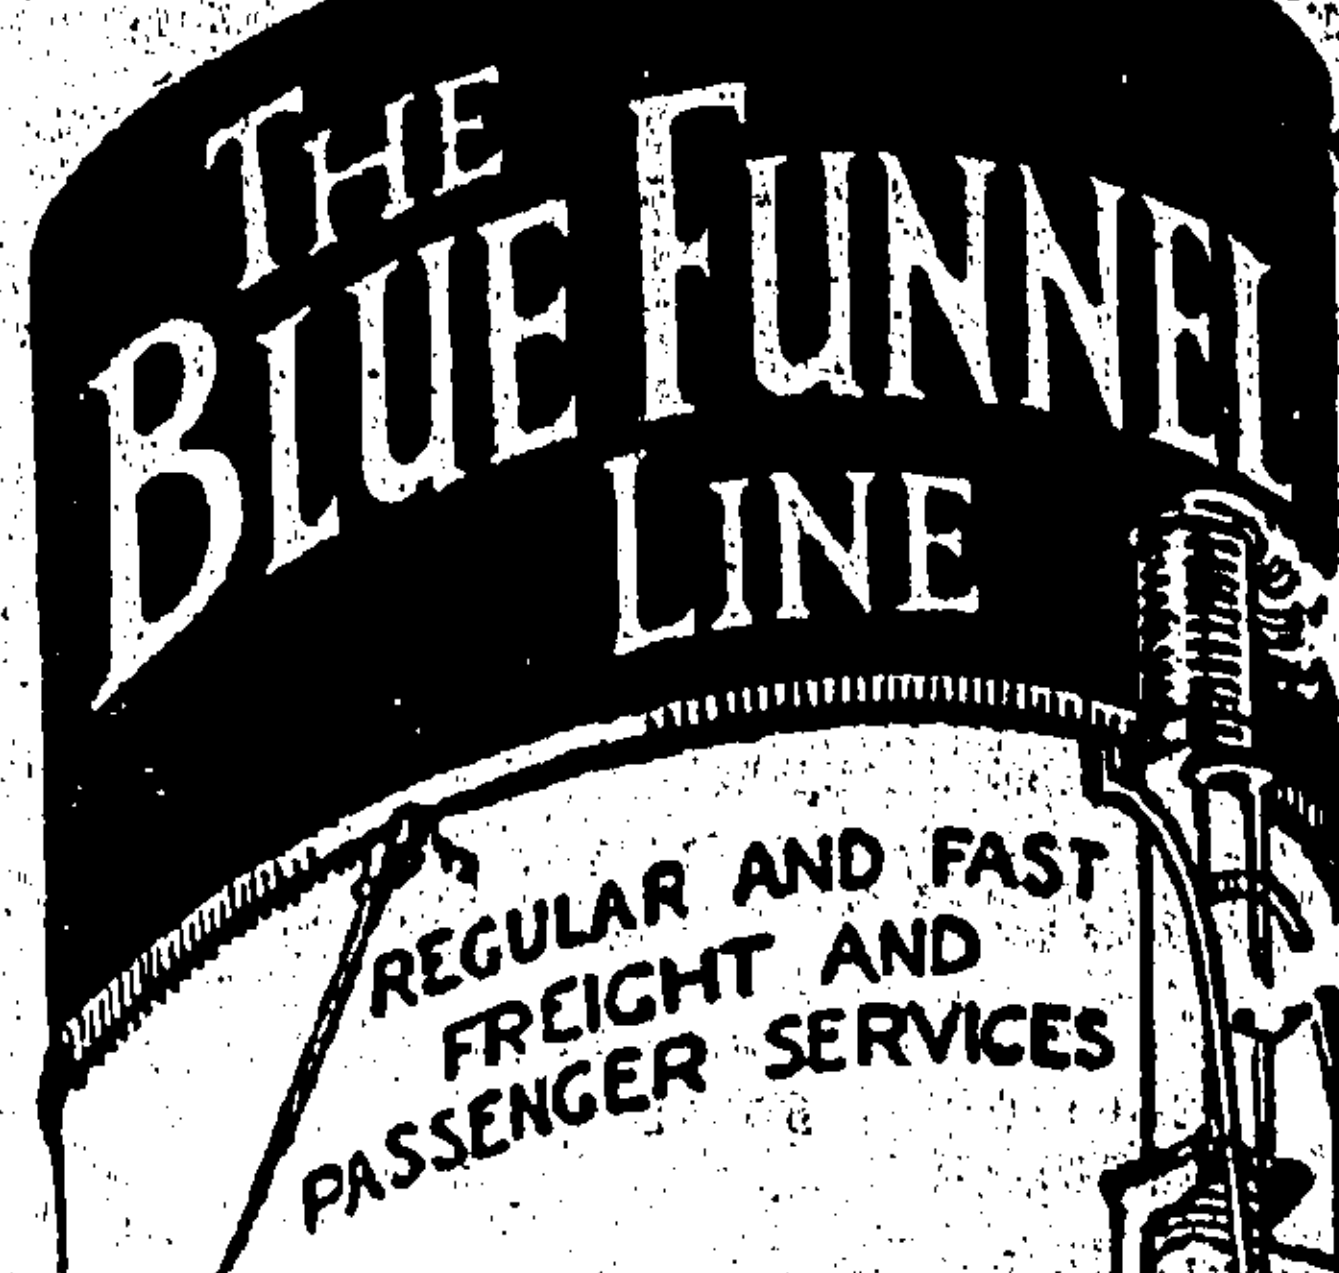

The bridesmaids' dresses were of mauve and yellow georgette and silk net, while those of the flower girls were of primrose yellow satin. Flowers carried by the bridesmaids were gladioli in sheaves, and the flower girls carried baskets of white roses.

The duties of "best man" were carried out by Dr. K. W. Chuan, whilst Mr. C. K. Kwok was the groomsmen.

The principal toast was proposed by Hon. Dr. R. H. Kotewall, C.M.G., LL.D., at a largely attended reception held at the Roof Garden of the Hongkong Hotel after the ceremony. He said that he had known the father of the groom for 35 years and was told that those business qualities which the "old block" possessed had passed on to his son.

The speaker expatiated on the charms of the bride, and expressed his opinion that it was an ideal match and that the couple would be happy for ever.

The honeymoon will be spent in Japan and Shanghai.

PIRATES AGAIN.THE ONYX—PASSENGER WOUNDED ON

Shanghai, Nov. 9.

One passenger was wounded when the s.s. Kwang Chi of the China Merchants' Steam Navigation Company was pirated while returning to Shanghai from Wenchow.

Large numbers of passengers were on the vessel at the time and she also carried a full cargo. The piracy occurred on November 6 and the vessel was not released until two days later.

Only meagre details of the attack are available at the moment but it appears that the pirates followed the now well established methods of piracy and boarded the vessel under the guise of passengers.

The pirates suddenly made their appearance, overwhelming the crew and looting the vessel. No injury was done to the officers of the ship who, however, were robbed of money and clothing. The vessel suffered little

HARBOUR TRAGEDY.MEMBER OF SAMPAN'S CREW DROWNED.

A tragedy resulted from the sinking of a sampan yesterday morning near Shaikwan.

Two Chinese, named Cheng Kwei and Shiu Ping-yan, were the sole occupants of a sampan, selling vegetables near Talkoo Dock. The vessel met a sudden squall and sank, about eight o'clock.

Shiu Ping-yan was drowned, while his companion was rescued by some workmen of Talkoo Dock.

they are members of the Legion or not.

(d) The British Legion of Scotland, which administers its funds independently.

(e) The British Legion Sanatorium and Settlement, who are responsible for the British Legion Villages at Preston Hall and at Papworth which are the only two villages of the kind in the whole world, and are a combination of a sanatorium and an industrial home.

(f) The British Legion Poppy Factory, which employs about 275 ex-service men, who are employed in the manufacture of Poppies for Armistice Day, and who, between 12th November, 1927, and Armistice Day, 1928, delivered no less than 29,308,775 Poppies for sale.

Special Effort Needed.

It will thus be seen that Poppy Day calls for a special effort from all of us—not only does the purchase of a Poppy give employment to some disabled ex-active service man but it also provides money for other benevolent objects—it is therefore incumbent on all of us to do the best we can to make Poppy Day on Monday in this Colony a great outstanding success.

And lastly let no one forget when he or she purchases a Poppy that—

"In Flanders fields the poppies grow;

"Between the crosses, row on row."

Wireless in the Hospitals.

During the broadcast of the News Bulletin, the Broadcasting Committee made some interesting references to the future programmes to be relayed from the Government Studio.

The announcement first extended the hearty thanks of the Committee to all those who had assisted at concerts since the opening of the studio. They were still anxious to secure all possible talent, and hoped that anyone who could contribute musical items or short interesting lectures on any subject, would communicate with the Programme Secretary.

The commercial news broadcast daily would seem to be serving a useful purpose, and is being taken in at Canton and various coast ports.

Church services on Sunday will continue to be a leading feature of the programme, and efforts are being made to broadcast at hours suitable to all.

To-day, Armistice Day, the ceremony at the Cenotaph will be broadcast.

On Saturday night, for the first time, amongst the listeners were the patients at the Naval Hospital.

This was made possible by an arrangement come to between the Naval and Military Y.M.C.A. Committee and Naval Authorities, whereby each contributed to the cost of the installation. This allows for 40 head phones and four loud speakers.

It is hoped a similar arrangement may shortly be come to with the Military Authorities in respect of their hospital.

TO STOP WARS.NEED FOR A GENERAL CONVENTION.

London, Nov. 9.

The need of a general convention supplementary to the Peace Pact was urged by General Smuts at a Rhodes memorial lecture at Rhodes House, Oxford. He suggested the convention should clearly define private and public wars and place the aggressor of a private war in the position of an outlaw, depriving him of all rights under international law.

General Smuts defined a private war as one waged by a party for its own national purposes and a public war as one in which the State was involved not for its own individual ends but for police purposes with others in pursuance of a public policy under an instrument like the League covenant.

He contended that the peace pact only covered a private war.

Freedom of the Seas.

The convention would solve the one great outstanding Anglo-American problem, namely, the question of the freedom of the seas. If the aggressor was made to forfeit all rights of commercial relations while engaged in a private war, the question of neutral rights would be revolutionised and the doctrine of freedom of the seas would cease to be of practical importance.

An even more important result of the proposed convention would be to make the economic sanctions under Article 16 of the League Covenant workable with the co-operation of the United States, since an outlaw under the Peace Pact would generally be an identical aggressor boycotted for flouting the unanimous decision of the League.

Conference of Interested Powers. General Smuts further suggested that "aggressor" might be defined by a conference of all the Powers interested in the area where danger threatened on similar lines to the conference provided for by the Pacific Ocean Pact of Washington, 1921.—Reuter.

Peak has for some time past been receiving the programmes, and the following letter from Doctor J. Howard Montgomery, resident surgeon of the Matilda Hospital, is of particular interest. He writes:

"I have no hesitation in saying that from a Hospital point of view it has been an unequalled success. The patients enjoy it more than anything else in the way of recreation and amusement, and they look forward eagerly to the times when music is available. The Church Services are particularly appreciated, and come through very well indeed. It is, for Hospitals, a great acquisition, and relieves the tedious hours and the monotony of lying in bed during a long illness, and is a source of much enjoyment, from which without radio they would be cut off. I hope it will be adopted for all Hospitals in the Colony, and that all the sick may have the benefits that are now available through radio.

"With the thanks of the Staff and numerous patients to those who have been helping to bring the broadcasting to its present high standard.—Yours sincerely, J. HOWARD MONTGOMERY.

COMMITTEE FIXES BASLE AS ITS HEADQUARTERS.

FRENCH REQUIREMENT FOR ACCOMPLISHMENT.

Baden-Baden, Nov. 9.

After deliberating for five weeks
the committee formed by the five creditor powers to organize the International Settlements Bank under the Young plan have practically agreed on all points.

A decision that the headquarters of the International Bank shall be in Switzerland, at Basle, was reached in the absence of the Belgian representatives, who wanted Brussels to be its headquarters.
The Bank will be established at Basle because of the excellent railway, telegraph and telephone communications.

Sir Charles Addis and Mr. W. E.
Layton represented Great Britain on the committee, the president of which was Mr. J. E. Reynolds, president of the First National Bank, New York.—Reuter.

Paris, Nov. 9.

The Chamber, by 327 votes to 256, passed a vote of confidence in the Government after a ten-hour debate on the new foreign policy.
In the course of the debate the Premier, M. Tardieu, declared that if evacuation of the third Zone was to be accomplished in eight months, the Young plan must be ratified and realized by the commercialisation of the debt, the creation of the International Bank and the issue of the first bonds.

He said that June 30 had been mentioned at the Hague as a date for the completion of the evacuation, but the death of Dr. Strese-mann and the French Ministerial crisis had not been foreseen and it was now evident that the period referred to had not yet begun to run.—Reuter.

Marshal Yen Hsi-shan.

Official Nanking sources state that Marshal Yen Hsi-shan is mobilizing several divisions in Shansi and Suiyuan provinces to enter into the fighting against the Kuomintang, but independent circles doubt the accuracy of this statement.

Hankow, Nov. 10.

Representatives of the Szechuanese leaders, General Liu Hsiang, General Teng Shih-hou and General Kuo Ju-tung, have arrived at Hankow, interviewing Marshal Chiang Kai-shek, with a petition for finances, arms and ammunition, so as to attack the Kuomintang in the rear from Szechuan into Shensi.

Despite Nanking reports of Yen
Hsi-shan's acceptance of the Vice-Commandership of the Nationalist forces, it is independently learned that he has persistently refused to interview General Ho Ying-ching pleading an attack of cholera.

The Nanking Officer has been forced to return baffled to Chengchow.—Reuter.

Nationalist Victory.

Hankow, Nov. 8.

It is officially claimed that Mihhsien has been recaptured from the Kuomintang by Chiang Kai-shek's crack personal forces, comprising the first and second divisions.

The victors are now driving on Tengfeng. It is stated that the fighting at Mihhsien was of the fiercest kind and that corpses were heaped "mountain high."—Reuter.

Enormous Losses.

Shanghai, Nov. 10.

Latest messages from Hankow
state that the city is once again witnessing feverish troop movements. Every available man is being withdrawn from the Hupeh garrison towns and is being sent up to Kinnan.

The situation at the front is evidently serious. Independent sources now deny the capture of Mihhsien, stating that the Kuomintang forces are still holding the city despite repeated onslaughts by the crack divisions of the Government troops. The losses on both sides are reported to be enormous.—Reuter.

tion of those obligations which are of the essence of civilised relationships, including agreements regarding the payment of debts.

"So the House of Commons has authorised the Government to extend recognition to Russia.

"On the other hand, we really would remind people that to recognise any Government diplomatically does not mean that we share its political views, its social or religious opinions or that we are prepared to defend its administrative action."

India.

Referring to India, Mr. Macdonald declared the Government had the fullest confidence in the Viceroy. "The sole purpose underlying the recent action of the Viceroy was not in any way to alter existing policy or to anticipate the findings of the Simon Commission, but to revive and foster that spirit of trust, co-operation and mutual understanding which was an essential condition to the attainment of the acknowledged goal. He believed this purpose was being fulfilled.

The Prime Minister, who also referred to his recent visit to America, and to the outlook in domestic affairs, in a passage regarding Empire affairs, declared his belief that the Commonwealth of British nations must be kept together, and could be kept together, only insofar as it remembered the family spirit and subordinated a sense of individualism to a sense of community.—British

The Cabinet has approved the

SEVERAL CASES OCCUR IN A FEW DAYS.

IN BROAD DAYLIGHT.

Shanghai, Nov. 6.

Following the example of law-breakers in America and other cities, armed robbers in Shanghai are resorting to motor cars as a quick means of escape after committing a crime. During the past two or three days at least three armed robberies in which motor cars were used by the gunmen have been reported.

The latest motor car robbery was reported on Monday when five men, two of whom were armed with pistols, drew up in front of a Chinese dwelling house at 1035 Carter Road. The gunmen were well-dressed and attracted little attention as they leisurely sauntered towards the house. The fact that it was broad daylight and the street well-peopled apparently did not bother them.

Huge Haul.

Rounding up the occupants, the robbers kept them well-covered with guns whilst the other members of the gang thoroughly ransacked the premises. A sheet was taken from one of the beds and into this the robbers dumped all of their loot, including jewellery, money and clothing.

One of the robbers, speaking the Ningpo dialect and apparently second in command of the gang, proposed that the loot be divided on the premises. The chief, however, opposed the plan and argument followed which ended when the chief threatened to shoot those opposing his orders.

Tenship Rendezvous.

In all the robbers were on the premises, according to the occupants, for about one hour and ten minutes. As a matter of precaution one man slyly emerged from the house and brought back a rickshaw. The chief then took the loot and placed it in the vehicle, the other robbers following five minutes later.

The occupants heard the chief mention a rendezvous at a tea shop in Chapei but were unable to learn either the street or the number.

A few minutes after the robbery
the occupants notified the police but the robbers had disappeared, the last three members of the gang departing in the motor car in which they had arrived. It is believed that the motor car later picked up the other two robbers at a spot arranged in advance.

Use Ropes.

Another robbery was reported at 1058 Tatung Road, the robbers being four in number, two of whom were armed with automatic pistols.
The gunmen took no chances with the occupants but at the point of pistols tied them together and confined them to a small rear room.
No alarm was raised, no shots fired and no arrests made.

A third robbery on the same day took place in an electric lamp shop at 443 Footchow Road. At the time of the robbery five assistants and the manager and four customers were in the shop. The robbers were two in number, one being armed with a pistol. From the cash drawer $150 was taken, the robbers scorning merchandise in the place.
These robbers, too, are believed to have escaped in a motor car which was parked nearby.

Boxing.
The contests at the Royal Naval Canteen Theatre on Friday afternoon and evening would have been a revelation to a boxing promoter in Hongkong. The results, with comments on the boxing in those fights meriting it, were as follows:
Gowan (Stormcloud) beat Thompson (Berwick) on points.
Burrows beat Sutton in the last round, on points. A very spirited fight, and Sutton was congratulated by one of the judges at the end.
Yarnell knocked out Dicks, in a well-fought and hard-hitting match.
The latter was floored three times in the second round, but continued pluckily.

Parr beat Savage. In the last light in the Welters, but both men were untrained and unfit, and should box better.
Chapman and Whitman opened the hall for the Light-weights, the latter, though game, being floored and refusing at the end of the second round.
Miller and Harvey fought off in the same weights, and, after a fourth round, Harvey managed to win through.

For the Middles, Tuck won from Finerty, and Lee won from Robb.
The above bouts took place on Friday afternoon, the Finals taking place at the same venue in the evening.
The results of these were:
Gowan won on points in the Welters, as did Humphries in the Crischweights, the latter knocking out
Mitchell. Yarnell also knocked out Parr in the Semi-final of the Welters.
Horton won his fight with Hooper in the Catch-weights.

In the final of the Light-weights,
Whitman won easily from Harvey, who was sent down bleeding in the first round. Lee won outright from Tuck in the Middleweight Class, Tuck, who is said to have sprained his wrist, being unable to turn out. Fraser gave the former a good fight, as he is the welter-weight champion of the Colony.

In the Welters, Gowan just managed to beat Yarnell, who was really as good as his victor. In the Catch-weights, Humphries won from Hooper, in a bout in which both were wary in the first two rounds, and both trying for the knock-out in the last round.
Presenting the cups and prizes to the winners, Captain C. M. Wardlaw said that the entertainment had proved how fit the fighters were, and congratulated the winners in each event. The large audience had given the boxers every chance, and he thought that no one had any reason for complaint. In particular, he would like to congratulate Tuck, Lee, Miller and Harvey on their wins, and complimented Lt. Comdr. Worth and other officers who had put in time and work to make the evenings so successful. P. T. Instructor Gregory, who had organised all the arrangements for smooth working, was also to be congratulated.
